

UFC 334

GANE vs HOKIT

NOVEMBER 14, 2026

12 BOUT PREVIEWS | TWO TITLE FIGHTS

Madison Square Garden, New York | US & Europe times

Independent guide | Research snapshot: November 3, 2026

CONTENTS

03	Event briefing and viewing times	TIMES
04	Gane vs Hokit	MAIN
05	Harrison vs Nunes	MAIN
06	Borralho vs Belgaroui	MAIN
07	Medic vs Holland	MAIN
08	Hasan vs Gurule	MAIN
09	Thompson vs Radtke	PRELIM
10	Dober vs Duncan	PRELIM
11	Miller vs McKinney	PRELIM
12	Johnson vs Almeida	PRELIM
13	Chiasson vs Mesquita	EARLY
14	Yanez vs Diaz	EARLY
15	Sadykhov vs Nascimento	EARLY
16	All 12 predictions at a glance	PICKS
17	Gane vs Hokit: tactical blueprint	TACTICS
18	Harrison vs Nunes: tactical blueprint	TACTICS
19	Card updates and final checks	UPDATES
20	Sources and editorial disclaimer	REFS

5 main-card bouts | 4 prelims | 3 early prelims

Each prediction includes a winner lean, projected method and counterroute.

EST / PST for the US | GMT / CET for Europe | Segment starts only

Sources: [1] [2]

EVENT BRIEFING

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14 | MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK

SEGMENT	US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
Early prelims 3 announced bouts	17:00 EST SAT NOV 14	14:00 PST SAT NOV 14	22:00 GMT SAT NOV 14	23:00 CET SAT NOV 14
Prelims 4 announced bouts	19:00 EST SAT NOV 14	16:00 PST SAT NOV 14	00:00 GMT SUN NOV 15	01:00 CET SUN NOV 15
Main card 5 announced bouts	21:00 EST SAT NOV 14	18:00 PST SAT NOV 14	02:00 GMT SUN NOV 15	03:00 CET SUN NOV 15

BROADCAST SEGMENT STARTS | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

TWO TITLES, THREE VIEWING BLOCKS

The announced card has 12 bouts: five on the main card, four on the prelims and three on the early prelims. Gane vs Hokit and Harrison vs Nunes are scheduled for five five-minute rounds; the other ten bouts are scheduled for three. The clocks above mark the start of each broadcast segment. Individual walkouts depend on earlier fights and production timing.

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

Start with the tactical question on each bout page, then compare the winner lean with its stated counterroute. Confidence is qualitative, not a statistical probability. The US provider lists coverage on Paramount+ without a separate pay-per-view purchase; European viewers should check their regional UFC listings. This November 3 research snapshot precedes official weigh-ins and may need updating if the announced card changes.

Sources: [1] [2] [3]

MAIN CARD | CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

CIRYL GANE VS JOSH HOKIT

HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE | 5 x 5 MINUTES

MAIN CARD STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
21:00 EST	18:00 PST	02:00 GMT	03:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Gane's heavyweight title defense asks whether he can keep a wrestling-based challenger operating at striking range. Hokit has already shown that he can compete through three rounds in the UFC. The new question is whether he can repeatedly create useful contact against Gane over a scheduled five-round fight.

TACTICAL READ

My Gane lean starts with footwork after the first exchange. A clean strike matters less if he finishes square and gives Hokit a straightforward route into the hips. I expect the champion to be most effective when he changes direction, attacks the body and makes the challenger restart his approach. Hokit can overturn that by cutting off the exit, connecting a second takedown attempt and turning the fence into a barrier rather than an escape route.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

A successful clinch sequence or heavy connection can change this matchup quickly. My KO/TKO forecast assumes Gane finds repeated clean striking opportunities; it does not specify a finishing round. Hokit forcing long defensive grappling exchanges would weaken the central read.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Gane

Confidence: Moderate

PROJECTED METHOD

KO/TKO

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [2] [5] [6]

MAIN CARD | CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

KAYLA HARRISON VS AMANDA NUNES

WOMEN'S BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE | 5 x 5 MINUTES

MAIN CARD STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
21:00 EST	18:00 PST	02:00 GMT	03:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

The co-main event brings Harrison's judo-based championship game against Nunes' broad finishing repertoire. This is a return from time away for both women. The opening exchanges are therefore evidence to observe, not a reason to presume that either athlete has retained or lost a particular level of sharpness.

TACTICAL READ

I give Harrison a small decision lean if she can turn first contact into a sequence of useful positions. Watch the grips before the takedown: Nunes can interrupt the plan by separating early and making the champion cross striking range again. Harrison should not treat an achieved top position as a finished task, while Nunes' submission skills make careless pressure dangerous. The forecast depends on Harrison connecting enough productive phases across five rounds without needing a single decisive finish.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Nunes' striking can change a round before any grappling develops, and her defensive reactions may be sharper than the layoff suggests. Harrison's return from surgery is context, not a medical assessment. Current clearance and weigh-in updates should be checked before publication.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Harrison

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

Decision

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [2] [7] [8]

MAIN CARD | BOUT PREVIEW

CAIO BORRALHO VS YOUSRI BELGAROUI

MIDDLEWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

MAIN CARD STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
21:00 EST	18:00 PST	02:00 GMT	03:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Borralho's rounded MMA game meets Belgaroui's extensive kickboxing background. The attraction is the work between the obvious phases: can Borralho create a grappling entry without absorbing a clean strike, and can Belgaroui make each separation lead back to the range he wants?

TACTICAL READ

I lean Borralho by decision if he links his striking to takedown threats and gives Belgaroui more than one problem at a time. A first defended attempt can still help if it creates the next angle, but extended reaching would expose him to knees and straight shots. Belgaroui's route is to defend with his stance intact and force a clean reset. I favor Borralho's ability to vary the task across three rounds rather than assume a submission will arrive.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Belgaroui has already finished opponents in the UFC, so his striking background is relevant MMA evidence as well as a credential. Borralho needs effective offense after gaining access. If the contest repeatedly returns to open space without a productive second action, the decision lean becomes less secure.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Borralho

Confidence: Moderate

PROJECTED METHOD

Decision

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [9] [10]

MAIN CARD | BOUT PREVIEW

UROS MEDIC VS KEVIN HOLLAND

WELTERWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

MAIN CARD STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
21:00 EST	18:00 PST	02:00 GMT	03:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Medic's finishing threat makes this a compelling test of how Holland handles an opponent trying to close distance decisively. The important moments may be brief: a balanced entry can produce a meaningful chance, while an overextended one gives the other man a completely different opportunity.

TACTICAL READ

My small Medic lean depends on connecting his first attack to a safe position for the second. I would watch whether he can reach Holland without following the same straight line repeatedly. Holland can frustrate that by making the initial attempt miss, returning offense on the exit and using grappling opportunities when the distance collapses. The KO/TKO projection reflects Medic's demonstrated finishing route, but it asks him to create the right opening rather than simply throw harder.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Holland's length and ability to change phases make this a volatile matchup. A failed rush can become an unfavorable clinch or ground exchange. If Medic cannot enter with his balance intact, I would lower confidence in both the winner lean and the projected method.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Medic

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

KO/TKO

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [11] [12]

MAIN CARD | BOUT PREVIEW

BILAL HASAN VS LUIS GURULE

FLYWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

MAIN CARD STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
21:00 EST	18:00 PST	02:00 GMT	03:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Hasan has a smaller UFC sample than Gurule, making this a useful test of how early promise translates into a more complicated fifteen-minute problem. Gurule's wrestling background adds a specific question: can Hasan maintain his offense while also defending the next change of phase?

TACTICAL READ

I give Hasan a narrow decision lean if he can keep his attacks connected without leaving easy access to his hips. The first defended shot is only part of the job; the next grip and the exit position may matter more. Gurule can change the contest by making Hasan work near the fence and then producing offense from those exchanges. I expect the clearer, more sustainable scoring actions to be more informative than the speed of the opening flurry.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Limited UFC evidence should keep confidence restrained. Gurule can outperform a simple reading of recent results if he consistently forces the same difficult defensive response. A fast finish remains possible, even though the illustrative method pick is a decision.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Hasan

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

Decision

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [13] [14]

PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

STEPHEN THOMPSON VS CHARLES RADTKE

WELTERWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
19:00 EST	16:00 PST	00:00 GMT	01:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Thompson's karate-based movement creates a clear technical question for Radtke: how do you shorten the distance without walking into a clean counter? This is a useful prelim selection for viewers interested in footwork, cage position and the decisions that come before either man commits fully.

TACTICAL READ

My narrow Radtke lean depends on limiting Thompson's exits and making the exchanges continue after the first strike. Simply following him around the fence would leave too many opportunities to reset. Thompson can reverse the read by changing direction before contact and keeping his counterattacks connected to a safe exit. Radtke's grappling options are most relevant if his pressure first creates a balanced entry, rather than a desperate reach after a missed punch.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

A successful Thompson range game could make Radtke's pressure unproductive for long stretches. The decision forecast assumes repeated competitive exchanges, not a proven pace advantage. No retirement outcome or future career decision is assumed in this preview.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Radtke

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

Decision

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [15] [16]

PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

DREW DOBER VS CHRIS DUNCAN

LIGHTWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
19:00 EST	16:00 PST	00:00 GMT	01:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Dober's boxing power and Duncan's submission threat offer very different ways to end the same exchange. The key is whether a pocket combination remains a striking contest or becomes the entry to a clinch. Neither man needs a long period of dominance to make his preferred opportunity count.

TACTICAL READ

Duncan gets my small lean through transitions. He needs to bring his feet underneath him before reaching for contact, because Dober can punish an entry made from too far away. Once connected, Duncan's best sequence is to make Dober defend one position and then attack the space opened by that response. Dober's route is to separate before the second grip, return to a balanced punching position and make Duncan pay for another approach. An uncontrolled scramble favors neither forecast automatically.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Duncan's submission loss to Renato Moicano is a reminder that grappling exchanges carry danger in both directions. Dober can erase a developing tactical advantage with clean boxing. The submission pick describes Duncan's preferred finishing route, not a claim that he will control every ground exchange.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Duncan

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

Submission

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [17] [18]

PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

JIM MILLER VS TERRANCE MCKINNEY

LIGHTWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
19:00 EST	16:00 PST	00:00 GMT	01:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

This pairing rewards close attention from the opening bell. McKinney's explosive striking and wrestling can create immediate danger, while Miller's submission experience makes a rushed transition costly. The contrast is not simply speed against experience: it is what each man does when the first attack changes the position.

TACTICAL READ

I lean Miller by submission if he survives the first clean attacking sequence without conceding a damaging position. His opportunity may come when McKinney commits to a takedown or tries to accelerate through a scramble. Miller needs secure grips and a useful angle before attacking the neck; reaching for a submission from a poor position can make the problem worse. McKinney can overturn the lean by keeping his early offense compact, protecting his neck and forcing Miller to defend strikes before any grip is established.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

McKinney's early knockout route is substantial enough to keep confidence low. Miller cannot assume that a frantic exchange will naturally settle into his preferred grappling position. Surviving the opening minute would not, by itself, establish a reliable advantage over the remaining fight.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Miller

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

Submission

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [19] [20]

PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

DONTE JOHNSON VS CESAR ALMEIDA

MIDDLEWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
19:00 EST	16:00 PST	00:00 GMT	01:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SUN NOV 15	SUN NOV 15

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Johnson faces a kickboxing specialist who can punish an approach that stays predictable. Almeida's technical striking gives this matchup more texture than a simple comparison of recent finishes. Johnson's ability to connect striking with grappling offers a way to alter the task before Almeida settles into a comfortable rhythm.

TACTICAL READ

My Johnson KO/TKO lean depends on creating uncertainty rather than winning every isolated striking exchange. A credible change of level can help open a punching lane, and a clean separation from the clinch can produce a different opportunity from a direct rush. Almeida wants to read the first attack, keep his balance and return accurate offense before Johnson can connect the next phase. Johnson should avoid remaining at kickboxing distance after an unsuccessful burst, where Almeida can build a clearer sequence of his own.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Almeida's counterstriking remains a meaningful upset route. Johnson's finishing ability does not remove the need for sound entries or patient defense. Moderate confidence reflects the variety of Johnson's available attacks; it is not a numerical probability or an assessment of betting value.

EDITORIAL LEAN	PROJECTED METHOD
Johnson	KO/TKO
Confidence: Moderate	Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [21] [22]

EARLY PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

MACY CHIASSON VS BIA MESQUITA

WOMEN'S BANTAMWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

EARLY PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
17:00 EST	14:00 PST	22:00 GMT	23:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Mesquita's elite jiu-jitsu is already translating into UFC submissions, but Chiasson's size and clinch work present a different entry problem. The decisive question comes before the submission attempt: who establishes useful grips, keeps a stable base and decides where the next exchange takes place?

TACTICAL READ

I favor Mesquita by submission if she can turn contact into a controlled ground entry. Chiasson can make that difficult by keeping her posture, separating grips and making Mesquita restart while absorbing offense. Once grounded, Mesquita's strongest route is to advance through connected positions rather than chase the first available limb. Chiasson's defensive priority is to protect her neck and avoid giving away her back during an escape. Size helps most when it supports sound positioning; it does not resolve a technically poor scramble.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

A prolonged clinch without a clean entry would make this lean less convincing. Mesquita still has to solve the MMA access problem before her strongest skill becomes decisive. Chiasson can win productive exchanges without accepting the ground positions that the submission forecast requires.

EDITORIAL LEAN	PROJECTED METHOD
Mesquita	Submission
Confidence: Moderate	Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [23] [24]

EARLY PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

ADRIAN YANEZ VS JUAN DIAZ

BANTAMWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

EARLY PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
17:00 EST	14:00 PST	22:00 GMT	23:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Yanez's accurate boxing meets an opponent whose grappling can change the shape of an exchange quickly. Diaz's UFC sample remains small despite his experience outside the promotion. That makes the connection between his first entry, the ensuing control and his ability to repeat the sequence especially worth watching.

TACTICAL READ

Diaz gets a narrow decision lean if he can make Yanez defend connected wrestling actions without offering an easy straight counter. A failed first shot is not necessarily a lost exchange, but the follow-up has to remain balanced. Yanez wants to create separation early, punish the next approach and finish his combinations where another takedown is difficult. Diaz must produce useful offense after gaining access; time spent holding an opponent without meaningful attack should not be mistaken for a complete argument that a round is won.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Yanez can make a low-confidence wrestling read collapse with one well-timed combination. Diaz's successful UFC debut does not establish how every later matchup will unfold. If he cannot connect entries safely, both the winner lean and the decision method become much harder to defend.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Diaz

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

Decision

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [25] [26]

EARLY PRELIMS | BOUT PREVIEW

NAZIM SADYKHOV VS JEFFERSON NASCIMENTO

LIGHTWEIGHT | 3 x 5 MINUTES

EARLY PRELIMS STARTS AT THE TIMES BELOW

US EASTERN	US PACIFIC	UK / GMT	CENTRAL EUROPE
17:00 EST	14:00 PST	22:00 GMT	23:00 CET
SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14	SAT NOV 14

SEGMENT START | INDIVIDUAL WALKOUT TIMES VARY

WHY WATCH

Sadykhov's pressure and ability to change phases meet Nascimento's established grappling background. Nascimento has limited UFC evidence, but his experience outside the promotion gives a reason to take the ground exchanges seriously. This is a test of entry quality and composure rather than a reliable mismatch on paper.

TACTICAL READ

My small Sadykhov KO/TKO lean comes from the chance to connect pressure with damaging offense after Nascimento reacts to the first threat. Sadykhov should keep his feet underneath him and avoid turning a missed strike into an exposed grappling entry. Nascimento can change the read by securing a stable position, interrupting the next attack and making Sadykhov solve a genuine ground problem. For Sadykhov, a controlled reset may be more valuable than following every opening into a scramble that the other man welcomes.

WHAT COULD CHANGE IT

Sadykhov's recent stoppage defeats require restraint, and Nascimento's submission tools make careless pressure dangerous. The current official event lists this bout at lightweight. That listing describes the scheduled division; it provides no evidence about either athlete's future weigh-in result or medical condition.

EDITORIAL LEAN

Sadykhov

Confidence: Low

PROJECTED METHOD

KO/TKO

Method forecast, not a result.

Sources: [1] [27] [28]

ALL 12 PREDICTIONS

EDITORIAL WINNER LEANS | METHODS | QUALITATIVE CONFIDENCE

BOUT	WINNER LEAN	METHOD	CONFIDENCE
Gane vs Hokit	Gane	KO/TKO	Moderate
Harrison vs Nunes	Harrison	Decision	Low
Borralho vs Belgaroui	Borralho	Decision	Moderate
Medic vs Holland	Medic	KO/TKO	Low
Hasan vs Gurule	Hasan	Decision	Low
Thompson vs Radtke	Radtke	Decision	Low
Dober vs Duncan	Duncan	Submission	Low
Miller vs McKinney	Miller	Submission	Low
Johnson vs Almeida	Johnson	KO/TKO	Moderate
Chiasson vs Mesquita	Mesquita	Submission	Moderate
Yanez vs Diaz	Diaz	Decision	Low
Sadykhov vs Nascimento	Sadykhov	KO/TKO	Low

HOW TO READ THE METHODS

KO/TKO includes knockouts and technical knockouts. A submission or decision is the preferred illustrative route for that winner; another method can still occur.

WHAT CONFIDENCE MEANS

Low signals a narrow lean or substantial uncertainty. Moderate signals a clearer tactical preference with credible counterroutes. Neither label is a measured win probability, a guarantee or a statement of betting value.

Sources: [1]

GANE vs HOKIT

MAIN-EVENT TACTICAL BLUEPRINT | FIVE SCHEDULED ROUNDS

1. GANE: FINISH THE EXCHANGE WITH AN EXIT

Gane's ideal sequence is not simply a clean combination. He needs to finish where Hokit cannot immediately connect his hands around the hips. Watch the last step after a strike: an angled exit can force a new approach, while a square stance near the fence can turn a successful attack into a difficult wrestling defense.

---

2. HOKIT: MAKE THE SECOND ATTEMPT COUNT

Hokit can build useful offense even when the first entry is defended, provided that he keeps contact and improves the angle. The important distinction is between following Gane and cutting off the route he wants. A balanced second attempt at the fence would test the champion more directly than a long reach from open space.

---

3. FIVE ROUNDS: OBSERVE THE COST OF EACH PHASE

A scheduled twenty-five-minute fight raises questions that a three-round result cannot fully answer. Do not assume either man will fade at a particular point. Instead, watch the quality of the next action after a demanding exchange: stance, defensive recovery and the ability to create an entry matter more than an isolated impression of heavy breathing.

---

4. WHY THE LEAN IS GANE BY KO/TKO

The forecast assumes Gane repeatedly reaches clean striking opportunities while making Hokit restart his attacks. It weakens if the challenger establishes long, productive clinch or ground sequences. A Gane decision remains a plausible alternative if he wins range exchanges without forcing a stoppage; the chosen method is a specific editorial route, not the only credible outcome.

Sources: [1] [2] [5] [6]

HARRISON vs NUNES

CO-MAIN TACTICAL BLUEPRINT | FIVE SCHEDULED ROUNDS

1. HARRISON: CONNECT THE GRIP TO THE NEXT POSITION

Harrison's judo background matters most when the initial grip creates a useful sequence. A takedown is only the beginning if Nunes can immediately recover or threaten from underneath. Watch Harrison's posture during transitions and whether her top position produces meaningful offense. Control that does not lead anywhere is a weaker foundation for the decision lean.

---

2. NUNES: INTERRUPT THE APPROACH EARLY

Nunes can change the fight before a prolonged grappling exchange develops. Clean counters, early grip breaks and a balanced separation can make Harrison cross striking range again. Her submission skills also matter if Harrison advances carelessly. The tactical contrast should not be reduced to a striker who has no ground options against a grappler with no other route.

---

3. TWO RETURNS: LET THE FIGHT SUPPLY THE EVIDENCE

Harrison's last bout was in June 2025; Nunes last fought in June 2023. Harrison's neck surgery also delayed the earlier pairing. Those facts explain uncertainty without establishing present fitness, timing or durability. Watch the actual exchanges for evidence of sharpness. Current medical clearance and future weigh-in results cannot be inferred from a historical profile.

---

4. WHY THE LEAN IS HARRISON BY DECISION

The small Harrison lean relies on connecting productive positions often enough to win rounds across five scheduled rounds. It is not a prediction of uninterrupted control. Nunes making the first contact costly, separating consistently or threatening a finish would undermine that route. Low confidence reflects the matchup and the time away for both athletes, rather than a precise probability.

Sources: [1] [2] [7] [8]

CARD UPDATES

CURRENT LISTINGS | FINAL CHECKS | VIEWING DETAILS

CURRENT OPPONENT: JOHNSON VS ALMEIDA

The current UFC event page lists Donte Johnson against Cesar Almeida. Some older guides still show Baisangur Susurkaev, including the earlier Paramount+ preview. This PDF follows the current official card for the pairing and uses the provider page only for US viewing information. An outdated opponent should not be carried into a prediction or image caption.

CURRENT DIVISION: SADYKHOV VS NASCIMENTO

The official event lists Sadykhov vs Nascimento at lightweight. Nascimento's athlete profile also reflects his earlier welterweight UFC appearance, which is a different piece of context. The scheduled division does not establish a completed weight cut. No weigh-in result, missed weight or current medical issue is asserted for either athlete in this guide.

FINAL CHECKS BEFORE THE EVENT

Recheck the official card, weigh-in report and any commission or UFC announcements as the event approaches. If an opponent or scheduled format changes, revisit the tactical analysis and the pick together. The current order is a research snapshot, not a guarantee of the running order on fight night. No future retirement decision is assumed for Thompson.

CALENDAR DATES AND REGIONAL COVERAGE

The US main card begins Saturday, November 14. In the UK and Central Europe it begins Sunday, November 15. Prelims also cross midnight in both European zones. These are segment starts, not fixed walkouts. Paramount+ information here applies to the United States; European availability and subscription requirements depend on the local rights holder.

Sources: [1] [3] [15] [28]

SOURCES & DISCLAIMER

CLICKABLE REFERENCES

[01] UFC 334: official card and times
[02] UFC: two-title-fight announcement
[03] Paramount+: United States viewing
[04] UFC: November action preview
[05] UFC: Ciryl Gane
[06] UFC: Josh Hokit
[07] UFC: Kayla Harrison
[08] UFC: Amanda Nunes
[09] UFC: Caio Borralho
[10] UFC: Yousri Belgaroui
[11] UFC: Uros Medic
[12] UFC: Kevin Holland
[13] UFC: Bilal Hasan
[14] UFC: Luis Gurule
[15] UFC: Stephen Thompson
[16] UFC: Charles Radtke
[17] UFC: Drew Dober
[18] UFC: Chris Duncan
[19] UFC: Jim Miller
[20] UFC: Terrance McKinney
[21] UFC: Donte Johnson
[22] UFC: Cesar Almeida
[23] UFC: Macy Chiasson
[24] UFC: Bia Mesquita
[25] UFC: Adrian Yanez
[26] UFC: Juan Diaz
[27] UFC: Nazim Sadykhov
[28] UFC: Jefferson Nascimento

RESEARCH SNAPSHOT & CLOCKS

Researched November 3, 2026. The official UFC event card controls the current pairings, divisions and announced segment starts; older guides may differ. All clocks show their own calendar date: EST (UTC-5), PST (UTC-8), GMT (UTC+0) and CET (UTC+1). European prelim and main-card starts fall on November 15. Individual walkouts are not fixed. Verify card changes and future weigh-in results before the event.

EDITORIAL NOTE

Digital World Pulse is an independent publisher, unaffiliated with UFC or the listed providers. Analysis, winner leans and methods are original editorial opinions, not results, guarantees or measured probabilities. No betting odds are used. Future performance and medical clearance are not established by this preview. Conceptual AI-created scenes show anonymous athletes, not the named fighters or real event photographs. Card placement and regional viewing arrangements may change.