HOME | NYK — 5-4 | LAST 5: 4-1

109.9 scored / 104.2 allowed per game

MATCHUP READ — B2B: NYK

New York won 109-97 in Cleveland on November 7. The Knicks can repeat it by keeping Cleveland out of the lane, but they're scheduled to play Milwaukee the previous night. If the Cavaliers get the Knicks rotating early, the short turnaround makes this a closer rematch.

EDITORIAL PICK	PROJECTED SCORE | AWAY-HOME	CONFIDENCE

MATCHUP READ — B2B: BOS

Boston's 104.3 points allowed per game is the strongest reason to question a Toronto lean. The Celtics play in Philadelphia the night before, while Toronto has Tuesday off. The Raptors need their first drive to open up a second pass before Boston's defense can recover.

Washington managed 75 points against Oklahoma City on Sunday, and Indiana has lost four of five. The Pacers get the home lean if they can rebound and attack before Washington sets its defense. A slower game with few transition chances gives the Wizards a better shot.

EDITORIAL PICK	PROJECTED SCORE | AWAY-HOME	CONFIDENCE

LA LAKERS AT BUCKS

MATCHUP READ — B2B: MIL

The Lakers have won five straight and average 121.9 points. Milwaukee comes home after a game in New York the night before. The Bucks can keep the margin down by ending possessions with one rebound; extra shots would put more pressure on their offense to keep up.

Brooklyn scored 93 in its loss to Dallas. New Orleans gives up 120.8 points per game, so the Nets have room to improve if they take care of the ball. The Pelicans still get the edge because they have scored more consistently even when their defense has struggled.

EDITORIAL PICK	PROJECTED SCORE | AWAY-HOME	CONFIDENCE

MATCHUP READ

Golden State has won five straight, but Houston has allowed just 107.0 points per game. Houston gets a narrow home edge if it can take away the second shot and keep the Warriors from shooting in rhythm. A hot opening stretch from three would put that defense under immediate pressure.

EDITORIAL PICK	PROJECTED SCORE | AWAY-HOME	CONFIDENCE

The same teams are scheduled to meet in Portland the night before. Oklahoma City's defense has held opponents to 104.2 points per game, so Portland's one-point home lean is fragile. Watch which side gets the better shots after both have already seen the other's coverage on Tuesday.

Toronto comes in from a home game against Boston the previous night. Philadelphia is 9-2 and has Wednesday off. The Sixers get the edge if they can make Toronto defend the full possession. Early offense off stops would help the Raptors avoid that test.

Dallas scored 130 against Brooklyn, but Minnesota allows 107.0 per game and has won four of five. Minnesota gets the home lean if it can force Dallas to finish over help at the rim. If Dallas turns those rotations into open perimeter shots, the margin shrinks.

EDITORIAL PICK	PROJECTED SCORE | AWAY-HOME	CONFIDENCE

Charlotte has scored 96.3 points per game and lost five straight. Phoenix is a clearer lean after holding Houston to 99 on Sunday. Charlotte needs to create early chances and finish them; long half-court possessions would make it harder to keep pace.

EAST GROUP B | PRIME VIDEO

NYK 5-4 (L5 4-1) | IND 3-7 (L5 1-4)

CUP NYK 0-1 / IND 0-1

Both teams enter this snapshot 0-1 in Cup play. New York has won four of five overall; Indiana has lost four of five. The Knicks get the lean if they can get back on defense and make the Pacers score against a set floor.

PICK: KNICKS	NYK 112 - IND 109	Low confidence

EAST GROUP A

MIL 1-9 (L5 0-5) | ORL 2-7 (L5 1-4)

CUP MIL 0-1 / ORL 1-0

Milwaukee is 0-5 over its last five, while Orlando already has a Cup win. Neither side has scored reliably. Orlando's home edge grows if it can attack the paint without giving up transition chances. Milwaukee can keep the game close by getting a stop and running.

PICK: MAGIC	MIL 110 - ORL 116	Moderate confidence

CAVALIERS AT HEAT

CUP CLE 1-0 / MIA 1-0

Cleveland scores 117.0 per game, and Miami has allowed 121.1. That creates a small road lean, even though the Heat have won three of five. Miami can reverse it by staying attached to shooters and forcing the Cavaliers to finish through help at the rim.

PICK: CAVALIERS	CLE 118 - MIA 117	Low confidence

MATCHUP READ — CUP ATL 1-0 / CHI 0-1

Atlanta is 4-1 over its last five; Chicago is 0-5 and allows 129.3 points a game. The Hawks can find good shots if they move the ball after the first drive. Chicago's path is to turn the game into an exchange of clean looks, as its 121 against Philadelphia suggests it can score.

MATCHUP READ — CUP MEM 0-1 / NOP 0-1

New Orleans won 135-134 in Memphis on November 2, so there is little reason to read this as a safe home pick. The Pelicans' scoring gives them a small edge. Memphis can turn it around if it limits early drives and finishes possessions on the glass.

MATCHUP READ — CUP UTA 0-1 / HOU 0-1

Utah has lost five straight and averages 106.2 points. Houston allows 107.0, making the Rockets a clearer home lean. Utah needs second chances or open catch-and-shoot threes; relying on difficult first attempts would leave too much to make up on the other end.

Portland won 128-120 in Sacramento on October 23. The Kings are allowing 122.4 points per game, leaving Portland room to score again. Sacramento can reverse the earlier result if it limits second chances and keeps Portland from getting into its offense before the defense is set.

Oklahoma City won the first meeting 108-101 at home. The Clippers scored 139 in their latest game, so the rematch has a different test: can Oklahoma City deny the first clean driving lane without opening a second one? Its season defense earns the narrow road lean.

Denver won 104-91 at New Orleans in October and has two scheduled days off before this one. The Pelicans play Memphis the previous night. New Orleans still gets a one-point home projection on its scoring average; Denver has a strong counter if it slows the game again.

Cleveland travels back from its Friday Cup game in Miami, while Dallas has Friday off. The Cavaliers' 117.0 scoring average and home court leave them a one-point lean. Dallas can make the rest edge count by attacking before Cleveland can organize its half-court defense.

REGULAR SEASON

IND 3-7 (L5 1-4) | PHI 9-2 (L5 4-1)

Philadelphia won the earlier meeting 114-109 in Indiana and comes in at 9-2. The Sixers have the home edge if they can slow the Pacers down after missed shots. Indiana can make the early tip competitive by getting the first good look before Philadelphia sets its defense.

PICK: 76ERS	IND 108 - PHI 114	Moderate confidence

REGULAR SEASON

LAL 9-2 (L5 5-0) | PHX 3-5 (L5 2-3)

The Lakers average 121.9 points and have three scheduled days off. Phoenix held Houston to 99, so the home defense has a plausible route to an upset. Watch whether the Suns can take away the first drive without conceding easy shots on the next pass.

PICK: LA LAKERS	LAL 118 - PHX 116	Low confidence

Charlotte is on a five-game skid and averages 96.3 points. The Clippers scored 139 against New Orleans, far above their season average, so the pick doesn't require a repeat. Los Angeles can win the scoring battle if it forces the Hornets to take contested shots in the half court.

HOW PROJECTED SCORES WERE BUILT

For each side, the baseline is 52% of its points scored per game and 48% of its opponent’s points allowed. We move that estimate 15% toward the league average (113.3 points per team per game). These are raw scoring averages, with no adjustment for pace or opponent strength.

Form adjustment: 18% of last-five minus season scoring margin, capped at 2.5 points in either direction. Home court adds 1.4 points to the host and subtracts 1.4 from the visitor. Consecutive games subtract 0.8 at the same venue or 1.3 after a venue change. Scores are rounded with no ties.

Confidence is Low for an unrounded gap below 4.5 points and Moderate otherwise. These are editorial labels. Lineup changes, injuries and results after November 8 are outside this snapshot.
