FULHAM NEED AN OUTLET

Manchester City have scored 21 goals in ten league matches. Fulham have conceded only 12, so moving the block from side to side matters more than taking early shots from distance. The visitors can threaten if they find a runner behind City’s advancing fullbacks. The home side should still get enough time around the penalty area to create the better chances.

CAN CHELSEA GET THROUGH THE MIDDLE?

Leeds have conceded eight in ten and drawn five. Chelsea scored 19 in the same span but lost 1–0 at Sunderland before the break. If Leeds crowd the centre, Chelsea need an overlap or a cutback rather than another pass into traffic. The visitors have a path to a point if they keep the first half close and retain the ball after regains.

VILLA'S PATIENCE AGAINST A NARROW BLOCK

Villa's 4–4 draw at Manchester United showed the upside and risk of a stretched game. Sunderland beat Chelsea 1–0 and can aim to make this another low-event contest. Villa should look to change the point of attack before Sunderland can reset. The home side's extra scoring threat earns the lean, with an away goal possible if Villa leave runners uncovered.

THE FIRST GOAL COULD DECIDE IT

Arsenal lead with 27 points and have conceded just five in ten. Newcastle have scored 13, so their best opening may come before Arsenal organise after a turnover or from a dead ball. Arsenal do not need to force the tempo if the match stays level. A clean sheet and a narrow away win fit their defensive record.

THE SPACES AROUND UNITED'S MIDFIELD

Liverpool beat Crystal Palace 3–1 before the break. United scored four against Villa but have also conceded 19 in ten games. If Liverpool can pull United's midfield wide, the next pass can open a route into the box. United's ability to score in a loose match keeps the margin narrow, but Liverpool have the stronger league record and home setting.

WHO CONTROLS THE SECOND BALL?

Valencia have eight goals in 12 matches and Rayo have allowed 21 in 11. Rayo can create pressure by keeping play in the visitors' half, but a crowded box makes early crosses easier to defend. Valencia's route is a quick pass into the channel after a clearance. Neither side's record supports a comfortable win, especially if the first goal comes late.

BETIS NEED CLEAN EXITS IN THE DERBY

Betis come into the Seville derby eight points ahead. Sevilla have conceded 19 in 12, so Betis can do damage if they play beyond the first challenge and carry the ball into the space behind midfield. Sevilla can tilt the contest through second balls and restarts. Betis get the narrow edge because they have won eight of their first 12.

HOW LONG CAN CELTA KEEP THE GAME LEVEL?

Celta have conceded ten in 12, the same total as Madrid, and have seven draws. They can make the early stages difficult if they keep the box crowded and force shots from wide angles. Madrid’s 31 league goals point to a breakthrough if they keep changing the angle of attack. Celta’s ten goals make an equaliser harder to project.

Barcelona have 48 goals in 12 league games and have won 11. Villarreal's 17 goals give them enough threat to make Barcelona protect the space behind the ball. Watch whether the visitors can find a forward pass before Barcelona win possession back. Barcelona's volume of chances remains the decisive reason to expect a home win.

ATLÉTICO CAN WIN A TIGHT GAME

Getafe have scored eight in 12 games. A tight home block and a long level spell are their best routes to a point. Atlético have allowed only ten and can keep their shape while looking for a switch of play or a restart to open the game. The gap in scoring and points favours an away win by one.

COMO CAN CONTROL THE SECOND PHASE

Como have scored 18 and conceded ten in 11 games. Cagliari have ten goals from the same number of matches. If Como can win the second ball after clearances, the visitors will struggle to get their line forward and create their own chances. A Cagliari set piece is the main threat to the clean sheet forecast.

CAN LECCE SURVIVE REPEATED ATTACKS?

Lazio are unbeaten with 29 points and nine goals allowed. Lecce have conceded 22, so keeping the ball after the first clearance could matter as much as defending the initial delivery. Lazio can make space by drawing the visitors toward one flank and switching play. The home side’s defensive floor supports a clean sheet if they stay patient.

THE MATCH HINGES ON NAPOLI'S WIDTH

Only a point separates Napoli and Torino, so this is a smaller edge than the home name might suggest. Napoli have scored 18 in 11 to Torino's 15. If the hosts keep an option wide, they can move Torino's midfield before looking inside. Torino can score if Napoli lose the ball with both fullbacks ahead of it.

FROSINONE'S ATTACK MAKES THIS CLOSE

Frosinone have scored 24 league goals, one more than Milan, and sit just four points behind. Milan's stronger record comes from losing only once in 11 matches. The hosts need cover behind their attacks because Frosinone can punish a poor first pass after a regain. Milan get a narrow home lean rather than a clean sheet.

INTER'S SWITCHES CAN STRETCH ATALANTA

Inter have 28 points and 28 goals in 11 games. Atalanta have scored 17 but conceded 20, giving Inter a route if they can play away from the initial pressure. Atalanta can make this uncomfortable by forcing mistakes close to goal. Inter's scoring record makes them the better pick if the match becomes a sequence of quick transitions.

Dortmund are unbeaten and level with Bayern on 21 points. Gladbach are bottom with four and have allowed 25 goals in nine matches. UNION NEED TO SLOW THE MATCH

Leipzig have scored 27 in nine games; Union have seven. Union’s best chance is to keep attacks away from the middle and turn the match into a contest of restarts and clearances. Leipzig can make the difference by moving the ball before the block slides across. An early away goal would make it much harder for Union to stay compact.

Paderborn have drawn four of nine and conceded just 11. Leverkusen have scored 20 but cannot assume a quick breakthrough against a side that has stayed in games. KIEL MUST KEEP WOLFSBURG OUTSIDE THE BOX

Wolfsburg have scored 26 in 11 and sit fifth. Kiel are bottom but have conceded only 14, so their position does not make them a soft defensive opponent. Wolfsburg should look to pull a defender out before attacking the gap, rather than rely on high deliveries. Kiel's one win makes the home side the clearer pick.

SCORING CHANCES MAY BE LIMITED

St. Pauli have drawn six of 11. Bochum have 14 points to St. Pauli’s 12, but their 11 goals are two fewer than the hosts’ total. Both can make the match uncomfortable for the other by closing the middle. Unless a mistake forces one side to chase, neither scoring record makes a two-goal forecast compelling.

PALERMO CAN PIN THE HOSTS BACK

Palermo are unbeaten, have 27 points and have scored 25 in 11. Catanzaro have six points and have allowed 23. Their best chance is to slow play and threaten when Palermo’s midfield steps forward. If Palermo can keep winning the ball after the first clearance, the home side are likely to spend long spells defending close to goal.

Palermo win

PISA'S SCORING EDGE IN THE TUSCAN DERBY

Pisa have scored 20 league goals to Empoli's 12 and start seven points ahead. Empoli drew 2–2 at Padova, so they can still hurt Pisa if they get the first pass forward under pressure. Pisa's stronger attack earns the edge, especially if they can stop Empoli turning the match into a sequence of set pieces.

REIMS RARELY GIVE A GAME AWAY

Saint-Étienne lead on 28 points and have conceded 11 in 12. Reims have scored 24, just one fewer, and have lost only once while drawing six. If Reims can keep the leaders from attacking immediately after regains, they can make this a contest of margins. Both have enough scoring threat to get on the board.
